

SOME THING NEW

Jessie Macneil-Brown

I've lived in Tower Hamlets for 10 years and I'm fed up of the infighting between Labour and its splinter factions. Instead of corruption and ego politics I want to see a focus on delivering for local people.

I've never been a politician but I want to fight town hall corruption and make sure residents have a strong voice with developers like Crossrail. I want Rent Control and investment in truly affordable housing that local people can afford. I want the best education for local young people and an end to the racial profiling we see with the police and ticket inspectors.

Who is Jessie?

Jessie is a senior campaigner for an international human rights NGO. She has also been a local activist helping people stand up to Crossrail. Jessie's never been in politics before we think she's just the sort of person who ought to be.

What is Something New?

We're a new political party. We're fed up that no-one represents decent politics, a mainstream anti-austerity agenda and the empowerment of people.

Political parties seem to put their own power above everything else and we want something new. Check out our website at www.somethingnew.org.uk

What will Cllr Jessie fight for?

- Tackling corruption
- Standing up to developers
- Housing that local people can afford
- Rent control
- The best education for local young people
- Safer streets
- End to racial profiling by the police and ticket inspectors

“We’re just normal people who are sick of how politics is done in Tower Hamlets and nationally. We want clean politics where the voters win elections, not politicians. If you vote for Something New, maybe the maybe Labour won’t take you for granted in future”
